

AN ENCOUNTER WITH KRAMPUS?

By Paul Dale Roberts, Halo Paranormal Investigations

Our paranormal team gets a lot of calls on our Paranormal Hotline. But one of the strangest calls we've ever gotten was in November 2015. A family who resided in Massachusetts was on the other line. They told me they thought they were being haunted by Krampus and his little gnome friend, named Limey. The family, who is of German descent, said the incident happened years ago.

The family included two boys and one girl. The girl, who was in her teens at the time, played around with a Ouija board with her two girlfriends. The board began answering their questions, and when they asked the entity what his or her name was, it spelled out Krampus.

The family also revealed that their daughter was misbehaving and using LSD, and the entity said he would punish her for her misdeeds. The entity told the daughter that she would first be visited by a gnome named Limey. Perhaps under the influence of LSD, the daughter started seeing a misshapen gnome creature running about the house. Limey had scrawny legs, feet with pointed slippers, a slight hunchback, and facial skin blisters. He was hideous to look at.

There was a time when the daughter opened the closet and Limey jumped out and scurried off. The mother of this family saw Limey only once while watching TV. With her peripheral vision, she saw a small, shadowy creature dart off and run underneath the kitchen table.

On another occasion, the daughter, while lying in bed, heard thumping sounds coming from underneath her bed. When she rolled over and looked underneath the bed, the little gnome creature poked her in the eye with a sharp object. The daughter's eye was bleeding profusely. The mother was about to rush her daughter to the hospital, when all of a sudden the bleeding stopped and the eye was normal as if nothing had happened. This was the last time they saw Limey.

What about Krampus? The two sons, who slept in bunk beds, heard a knocking on their closet door. The boys kept watching the closet door as it got louder and louder. Their father heard the noise and went to investigate. When he opened up the closet door, they all saw two large red eyes come flying out of the closet, going right through him. He felt a chilling cold breeze go right through him.

The next incident occurred on Christmas Eve, when the daughter said she confronted a large entity with horns and red eyes. The entity held the daughter down on her bed and slapped her repeatedly as she screamed and screamed. After the experience, the daughter was hospitalized due to the trauma the event caused.

The family was very stressed out from the paranormal experiences in their home and decided to go on vacation to Florida for a week. When they returned, they discovered that their house had burned to the ground. There was no explanation for the fire.

The paranormal activity experienced by this family eventually ceased, and they now live in a new home in another state.

Is Krampus real? This family certainly thinks it might be. ♦
